Congressman Weiss Discharged

Wautoma, Wis., July 10.—When the cases of former Congressman Charles H. Weiss and Thomas McNeil of Sheboygan were called on Monday, District Attorney Jones moved that they be dismissed for the reason that there was no evidence of any crime having been committed.

Mr. Jones announced that W. W. Burgett, the game warden making the complaint charging an offense against the state for violation of the game laws, had been misinformed as to the facts by two other game wardens, D. M. Crausson and I. H. Boomer. Both defendants were present, represented by Attorney E. R. Bowler of Sheboygan and State Senator E. F. Killeen of Wautoma and when announcement was made of the dismissal the senator insisted that the record must state the full facts and Judge Sorenson recorded the full motion for dismissal.

J. E. Messerschmidt of the attorney general's office was here to try the case, but when the full facts were laid before him by Crausson and Boomer he agreed with the state game warden, John A. Shotts, that there had been no violation. Messrs. Weiss and McNeil were charged with having brook trout in excess of the number allowed by law.

John Hume Elected Manager.

Marshallfield Herald.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Wisconsin Advancement Association held in the city of Milwaukee on Thursday last week, Mr. John P. Hume of this city was selected as general manager to take charge of the public matters and colonization work of the undeveloped lands in central and northern Wisconsin.

Mr. Hume was not an applicant for the position but his selection was brought about by reason of some factional differences in the general conduct of the work. The headquarters of the association will be located at Milwaukee and he under the direct supervision of Mr. Hume who will spend more or less of his time in that city.

No definite plan of publicity has as yet been decided upon, but the work of getting actual settlers will be the principal object sought.

Dwelling House Burned.

The dwelling house belonging to L. J. Thompson, situated just back of the city hall on the west side, was badly burned on Tuesday afternoon, so that there will be a considerable loss.

The fire was discovered shortly after one o'clock, and the roof of the kitchen part was afire, and it rapidly spread to the garret inside, and being fanned by a stiff breeze the building was soon pretty well ablaze inside by the time the fire company arrived, notwithstanding the fact that only a few minutes elapsed from the time the alarm sounded until they had a stream playing on the building.

The contents of the lower floor were removed from the building, but the clothes and contents of the upper story were either burned or damaged by water. The loss is only partly covered by insurance.

The fire is supposed to have originated from a spark from a passing locomotive.

Had a Sane Fourth.

Marshallfield Herald.—Last Tuesday was the Fourth of July. Look at a calendar and see if the statement is not correct. There was nothing to show for it only the two flags, one on the city hall and the other on the G. A. R. flag pole. Marshallfield people surely gave Independence day a lesson in patriotism by drinking red, lemonade and smelling gun powder.

What's a Fourth amount to the reading of the declaration of independence with fireworks in the evening. The one just past may be termed a sane Fourth. If it was then turn the tables next time and let us all go crazy. Without a chance to buy, beg or borrow something to make a noise like the Fourth, was enough to cause a boy to strike his dad.

Boost Community Interest.

To every thinking man, Farmer, Merchant and Worker.
We urge every consumer to help develop the home market, increase home property values and market by supporting his home newspaper, by supporting his home merchant and by using articles of home manufacture. There are more than twenty articles manufactured in Grand Rapids.

Before purchasing that next money order give your home merchant an opportunity to make you a Cash Price on the goods you require. Mind you, we say CASH price. When you buy by mail, you pay cash. It costs money to carry accounts and the mail-order houses realize it.

With each year home merchant can buy and sell cheaper. If you are determined to purchase from outside merchants, at least go in and compare what you have purchased with the goods of the home merchant and then figure out how you stand. Convince yourself that you can purchase as cheaply at home—Quality and Cash Payment considered—as you can by mail.

Build up your home Community. It spells PROSPERITY and it means increased values for city and farm property.

Give your business to the home institutions, the people that extend you credit when you need it.

The Elimination of the retail merchant, local newspaper, etc. spells MONOPOLY.

Become a member of the Commercial Club. We aim to Boost Community Interest.

Ripon Team Beaten.

The Ripon baseball team was scheduled to play here on Saturday and Sunday but the game of Sunday afternoon was cancelled on account of the rain.

The game on Saturday afternoon was pulled off, however, and resulted in a victory for the home team by a score of 5 to 2. Nelson and Nelson constituted the battery for the locals.

Both teams had saved their best men for Sunday's game, when it was expected that there would be a battle royal.

Next Sunday the Waupun team will be here to play. Waupun has a strong nine and it is expected that there will be a good game.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-two years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it is strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them that I owe my health and vigor to your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house."

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her."

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."

—Mrs. J. G. JOHNSON, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 8.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

HADN'T SEEN IT SINCE.

She—You ought to see that man in evening clothes. He—Id like to, he borrowed my dress suit three months ago.

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of Ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura. I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910.

POULTRY IN IRELAND.

Great Wealth in Industry, Says Official Report.

Chickens Supplied to England Exceed in Amount That Which Comes From All Other Countries of Europe Combined.

Dublin, Ireland.—The opinions of experts given at a conference on the poultry industry, held in Dublin recently, confirm the views expressed in the report of the department of agriculture and technical instruction for Ireland. Sir Horace Plunkett, a former vice-president of the department, declared that there was a mine of wealth in the poultry industry waiting development. The present vice-president, T. W. Russell, gave figures showing the development of the industry in the last five years, and said that the export of butter alone almost equaled the export of whiskey and porter combined, and that when eggs were added to butter the two combined almost doubled the alcohol export; this in spite of the fact that the export of whiskey and porter is commonly believed almost to equal wine, which was of course easily first.

The poultry supplied by Ireland at the present time to Great Britain exceeds in amount that which is being supplied by all the other countries of Europe. Diagrams and maps exhibited at the conference showed side by side the growth of the system of instruction and organization and the growth of the export of eggs and poultry. The correspondence between the two sets of charts was remarkable. The value of the export now amounts to $20,000,000 a year and a prophecy that in the near future the amount of money earned by Ireland from eggs and poultry would be nearer to $100,000,000 than to $20,000,000 was made by T. P. Gill, secretary of the department and formerly the nationalist member of parliament, who was on an Irish mission in the United States with Mr. John Dillon and the late Timothy Harrington when the Parnell crisis occurred.

The wealth from this industry mainly goes to the small farmers and laborers and their wives. There is no form of wealth that can be more thoroughly or more minutely distributed in a rural population than this. It is said that many cases the receipts from eggs are sufficient to pay the rent. The industry gives employment to farmers' wives and daughters, yielding returns on small farms of from $100 to $300 per annum.

PIERRE VEDRINE, the French aviator who recently won the Paris to Madrid aeroplane race, is now trying to capture the $100,000 offered in the Paris-Rome-Tunis air race. He was one of the last of the contestants to start and then was delayed by an accident to his machine.

The conference was attended by officials and representatives of the Irish poultry committees which work the poultry schemes, and by experts and public representatives from England and Scotland. The practical manner in which the business was conducted made a deep impression on the visitors.

One delegate, from Bristol, gave a dramatic touch to the proceedings just before the close. He stood up in his place and said: "I was all my life an anti-home ruler, but the way this conference has been conducted may lead me to alter my views." A delegate from Armagh protested against this observation, but he was quickly answered by Mr. O'Connor, a delegate from Cork, who said: "And as representing Cork, I applaud it."

The incident passed off with this observation. Slight as it was, it summed up the Irish situation admirably. The proceedings of this conference opened the eyes of the visitors from England and Scotland to show what Irishmen could do to develop this country if they were permitted to do so.

der the eye. A few more shots ended the battle.

"There was great rejoicing on the part of all over the fact that there was one fewer Bengal tiger in Nan. His body was seven feet long, tall three feet, height three and one-half feet, with head, shoulders, teeth paws to match. Thousands called to see him the following day. Great credit is due to the three men that stood so bravely to their post and also to the beaters who took their share in the hunt. This was a great treat that many enjoyed. It being so near that ladies could sit on Dr. Taylor's porch and see the battle go on all the afternoon and could hear the men directing the fight. Tigers have been troubling the people much in this vicinity the last six months. They have killed a number of cattle and dogs. Many people have been killed by them, too, in the villages."

THREE KILL A TIGER

Village of Nan, Siam, Rejoices at Death of Beast.

Bangkok Paper Gives Graphic Account of Slaying of Ferocious Bengal Tiger by Three Americans—Woman Watched Battle.

Minneapolis, Minn.—How a Minneapolis young man, well known socially, helped to bring down a Bengal tiger in Siam, is told in a Bangkok paper copy of which was received by John S. Bradstreet. Ray Peoples is the man. The account of the hunt, as it appears in the Nan correspondence of the Bangkok paper, follows:

"The quiet city of Nan was stirred up last Saturday by the news that a large Bengal tiger was in the midst. He had killed a large bullock in the morning and was hiding under cover in an old deserted hut across the river from Dr. Taylor's compound. The wat was grown over with dense thorns so that a man had to cut his way through. It did not seem possible that a tiger could be so near, not a quarter of a mile from Dr. Taylor's house."

Our Pronunciation Is Bad

London Elocution Teacher Especially Complains of Nasal Twang of the American Women.

London.—English teachers of elocution are shocked by the American pronunciation of English. One of the best, speaking to an English newspaper reporter, said the American nasal twang completely after it has become habitual is impossible. That curious rising inflection to nearly every word which is characteristic of Americans from the northern states and is of Indian origin, may be modified. But the hardest part of my task with American women is to teach them to speak more softly. Their high-pitched voices are not welcome in European drawing rooms, and I find the best method is to keep them whispering for ten minutes together."

"It appears that Americans emphasize the Saint in Saint Paul too much, say 'I guess' and indulge in slang which is incomprehensible to a keen English intellect. So when we hear the sound of men's voices and the barking of a dog. The buyer of Roselands was at hand! Should the girl walk out with that bundle of cuttings under her arm, and her chin held high in defiance? No, of course not. Should she go without the cuttings? Should she break her way to the field in the rear through the rank grass and weeds? A shed with vines climbing over it, and the door standing half open caught her eye, and a few seconds later she was concealed."

A good looking young man, talking with his chauffeur, came up the path and unlocked one of the doors, and entered. Half a dozen trips were made by the two, and when they came to an end the hiding girl knew that the chauffeur had driven away alone, and that the master and his dog were seated on the doorsteps within 15 feet of her. She heard the smoke of a pipe, and she scented the man say to the dog:

"Well, old fellow, we are here at last. Wonder if we are going to be lonesome? We'll put in a few days cleaning up Roselands, and then we must to our canvasses."

"An artist, eh? That's what Miss May had thought as she peered at the man's face through a crack in the door. He had brought the last of his effects; and was going to stay right there. Now, then, was she to get out unseen?"

"No rain for a week, and everything around here wants water?" continued the man. "We must put the hose on the lawn, and I'll take care of the roses. And say, Carlo, be a little careful as to the dogs you get acquainted with around here. They must be up to the mark. They say a man is judged by his dog. Something in the shed there? Go and see."

The dog had scented the trespasser, and now he ran down and stuck his

1,500 Miles on Horseback

Miss Virginia Vance, Young School Teacher, Starts on Vacation Trip From Washington Town.

Spokane, Wash.—Fifteen hundred miles on horseback is the summer vacation trip to terminate at Phoenix, Ariz., on which Miss Virginia Vance, a young school teacher, has started from Kennewick, Wash.

Her father and brothers accompany her in a covered wagon and carry supplies and camp equipment. Mrs. Vance and two young children are to travel by water and rail to Fresno, Cal., to remain there until next fall, when they will join the rest of the family at Phoenix.

Miss Vance has selected a route to the southwest, through Oregon, Nevada and Arizona by way of Death Valley, Lake Tahoe, to Crater Lake and Lake Inland, keeping near the California line and following the canyon of the Colorado river in Arizona. No effort will be made to establish a record, nor will Miss Vance offer souvenirs or photographs for sale to cover the expenses of the trip.

Traveling overland through picturesque scenery in almost the same style as the early settlers came into the western country will, she believes, be an interesting and valuable experience.

The little party will sleep in the open, cooking at camp fires and stopping occasionally to hunt and fish. It is also planned to make detours into the surrounding country along the California border.

"I have been planning this trip for a long time," Miss Vance said, "but the opportunity to make it was not offered until my parents decided to make their future home in Arizona."

Pittsburg.—Only thirteen monkeys are left of a "poison squad" which Dr. Frederick Proeschner, pathologist of the Allegheny general hospital, has been experimenting with in an effort to discover the germ of infantile paralysis. These are taken from the rest cure at the Riverview park zoo. The monkeys already show a marked improvement, and by fall, it is thought, will be ready for further experiments.

It's a Wise Man Who Can Keep His Own Counsel

It's a wise man who can keep his own counsel, but it's a wiser one who can tell it like a lawyer.

An Artist and His Dog

BY CARL JENKINS

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

It was known to the Shetlands, the Durhams, the Chattertons and all other country families for five miles around that the little farm known as Roselands had been sold to some one in the city, but the name of the buyer had not transpired. Roselands had been owned and occupied by an old recluse for years. His hobby was growing roses, but he would never sell or give one away. They simply budded, bloomed and faded.

On two occasions Miss May Shetland, who was by all odds the best-looking young woman who drove past Roselands had stopped and tried to melt the old man's heart, but it was in vain. Had she been red-headed and cross-eyed, and had a big mouth and a nose tilted up at the end, he could not have been more surly with her. Neither praise, flattery, smiles or cash would melt him. Red roses—pink roses—white roses—roses enough for a duke's wedding, and yet the passersby could not have one of them.

When it was known for certain that the old recluse had departed, and that the buyer was coming down from the city in a few days to take possession, Miss May put on a determined look and said:

"Well, I'm going right over there tomorrow afternoon and get some cuttings from those rose bushes. I don't believe the buyer will care. At any rate I'll chance it."

"He's probably a married man," said the mother, "and you don't know what his wife may say about it."

"If she's mean enough to say anything I'll offer to pay. Why, we've given away cuttings and roots and bulbs by the cart load."

At two o'clock next afternoon, after a walk of a mile, Miss May arrived at Roselands. She had brought a knife along, and she lost no time selecting the bushes and making her cuttings. When she had bundled them up she took a look into the cottage through a window, and was amazed to find that a lot of new furniture had been moved in. Weeds and grass had been bent out down, and it was evident that the buyer was ready to take possession. Let her take a look. Why, here's a bundle of them! We came home just in time. She heard us and went into hiding. Must have known she was a trespasser and a thief, and yet how she stood up to me! Wasn't that an awful bluff, old man? Well! There are a few things to be found here we settle down."

Mr. Tilling was only a day or two finding out what he wanted to know, and then he appeared at the Shetlands, not as a caller, but as a bearer of burdens. He had three rose bushes. They were, as he explained to Miss May, partial repayments for calling her a cat, a coon and a rabbit. If she still felt aggrieved she might send father and brother over and dig up all, but a single bush. He had exclaimed "thunder!" at the sudden sight of her, but there were lilacs and tulips and pinks at Roselands, and would she take them and forget the roses?

Miss May's chin came down by degrees, but it came down.

One evening in the late fall the dog Carlo wasn't so very much astonished to hear his master say, after coming home at a late hour, "Well, my old fellow, we're going back to town for the winter soon, but next spring Roselands will surely have a mistress. It was you that discovered her, and I want to tell you how much obliged I am. Helgho! How she did stand here and bluff!"

The boy, like the tariff, the football rules and the suffragette, is an eternal problem. He is a never-ending source of discussion at teachers' conventions, family councils and sociological conferences. He is blamed for many things which he has nothing to do with; and is sometimes, though rarely, given credit for things he does not do. Usually, however, the criticism of the boy is adverse. Where there is one optimist to see his good points, there are ten pessimists to bewail his faults.

Perhaps the strongest and most unprejudiced adverse criticism at the present time comes from the field of business life. It is very common for a business man to complain about the boys that come into his employment. They can neither write neatly, spell correctly, nor cipher accurately; their personal habits are none too admirable, and they have little politeness or respect for superiors. So say many large employers of boy labor. If these statements are a fair, sure, surely there is something wrong with our boys—William T. Miller in the Atlantic.

Origin of "Buncombe"

In historic Buncombe county, North Carolina, was originated the phrase "talking buncombe," for in this mountainous county years ago, Col. B. B. Ward Buncombe founded his headquarters at "Buncombe Hall," over his door was the inscription, "Buncombe county, became current hereabouts by home folks, but ungenerally by strangers have used it to signify political blarney or exaggerated praise."—"In the Land of the Sky," Joe M. GEN. LEE AND JEFF DAVIS

Mrs. Burton Harrison's Description of the Two Great Leaders of the Confederacy.

Our most illustrious caller that spring was the commander-in-chief of the Army of Northern Virginia. General Lee came one evening, and after talking a while with my mother and me, he went to his room. It was broad moonlight, and I recall as if it were yesterday, the superb figure of our hero standing in the little porch without, saying a few last words as he swung his military cape around his shoulders. It did not need the most unimpaired mortal I had ever seen. As he swept off his hat for a second and final farewell, he bent down and kissed me, as he often did the girls he had known from their childhood. At that time General Lee was fifty-four years old, and his face was as fresh as a boy's. He was recognized by all, "faded" him into the region where envy, nor calumny, nor hate, nor pain, ventured not to assail him. We felt as he left us and walked off to the quiet, leafy street in the moonlight, that we had been honored as by more than royalty.

We went often to Mrs. Davis' receptions, where the president never failed to say kind words in passing, and sometimes a grave, always looking as if he bore the sorrows of a world, he was invariably courteous, and sometimes playful in his talk with very young women. These entertainments of Mrs. Davis, held in the evening between limited hours, were attended by every one in deep mourning.

The lady of the Confederate White House, while not always sparing of witty sarcasms upon those who had affronted her, could be depended upon to conduct her salon with extreme grace and conventional ease. Her sister, Margaret Howell, aided to lead it. Her mother, Mrs. Lee, always regretted that her path in life and that of Miss de Steuarts was diverged so widely. Mrs. Burton Harrison, in Saratoga.

Another Terrible Case of Gravel Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Charles Understelt, 50 W. 44th St., Chicago, Ill., says: "Kidney trouble ran me down from 136 to 133 pounds and I was a shadow of my former self. Ob! how I suffered. It became so bad the doctors said my left side was paralyzed. I could not walk without assistance. I grew worse and went to a hospital, but was not helped. My friends all thought I would die. Three weeks after I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I passed a gravel stone as big as a pea. At intervals the stones kept passing from me. I passed eleven in one day. Doan's Kidney Pills finally cured me. My health returned and I have had no kidney trouble since."

Thackeray's Kindness of Heart. Thackeray, who has lived, an editor of the Cornhill, could hardly bring himself to reject a MS. for fear of hurting his would-be contributors. The story of his actually paying for contributions that he never printed, in order to conceal the fact that he had rejected them, is a very curious one. We do not remember exactly how the evidence points. But even if it be a story, such stories are not told of men made of the stern stuff of the Thackerays commonly unknown.
